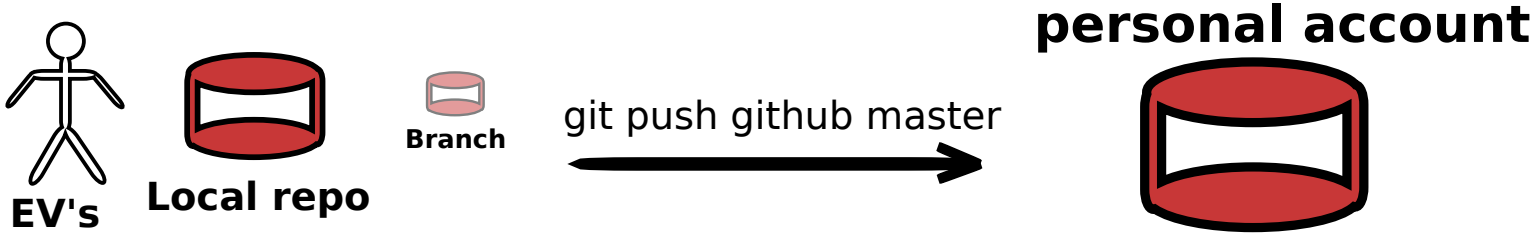
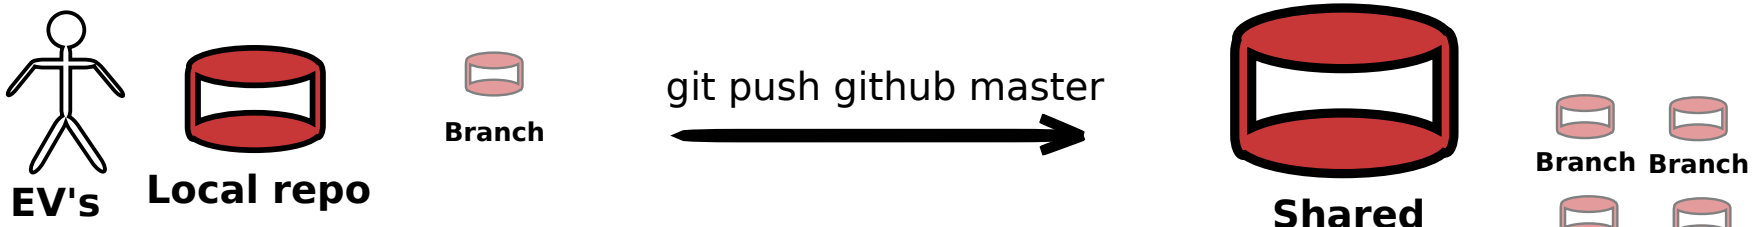
Adhoc approach



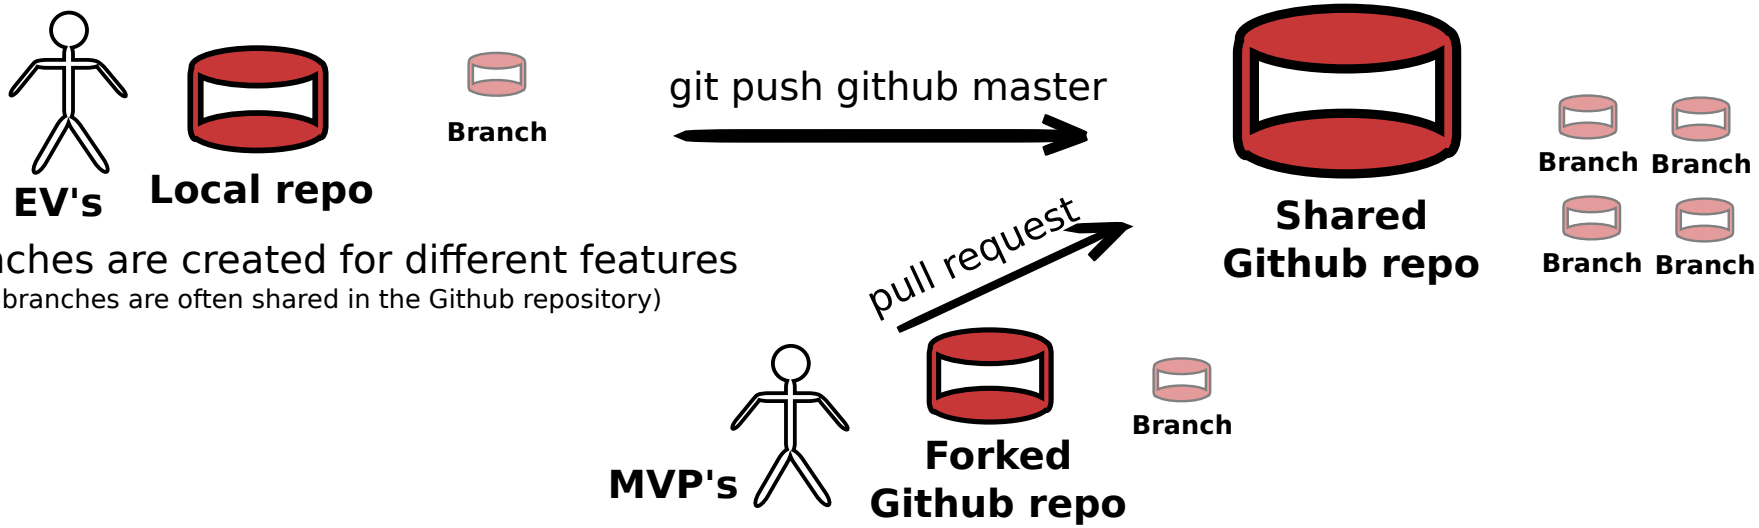
Branches are optinal
(branches are merged before pushed, usually)

Branching approach



Branches are created for different features
(branches are often shared in the Github repository)

Branching approach



Branches are created for different features
(branches are often shared in the Github repository)